

Could you be a Care Ambassador?

Promoting a Career in Social Care

Could you be a Care Ambassador?

Are you passionate about your work?

Are you proud about what you do?

Would you like to promote social care to others?

The Lancashire Workforce Development Partnership is recruiting volunteers to be Lancashire Care Ambassadors as part of the Greater Care Ambassador Scheme.

What is a Care Ambassador?

Care Ambassadors are social care workers who volunteer to talk to a variety of groups in the community about social care.

These groups include: schools, colleges, people looking for a career change and people looking for employment.

What will you gain?

- An exciting opportunity to inspire others to consider a career in social care
- Excellent training and support from other Care Ambassadors
- The opportunity to be part of an innovative programme to raise the profile and image of social care.

What is the commitment?

You will need to be able to attend a one day training course (which is free) and have the time to promote social care at an event approximately every two or three months.

Quotes from existing Care Ambassadors:

"I get a real buzz from being a Care Ambassador."

"It's great to work with young people."

"I am proud of my work and I think it is great that we have the opportunity to tell other people about it."

"My employer was very supportive and encouraged me to be an Ambassador."
